CBC President's Address to the Canadian Club

• I have just listened with keen interest to the address given earlier by President J. Alphonse Ouimet of the CBC, (7:30 p.m. on CBC Radio, December 5). It was a concise but discerning analysis of the trends, challenges and perils confronting broadcasting in this country today. His stress on the importance of Canadians establishing forthwith basic objectives in our use of radio and television was compelling. His suggestion that, since needs and pressures seem to have decided that we shall have two forms of broadcasting in Canada, separate public authorities should develop and administer the two nation-wide networks, surely merits careful thought by all serious Canadians. It should be possible for citizens of understanding and good-will to devise simple, fair and amicable arrangements for all concerned.

The Problem of Arthritis

• The program, Close-Up (December 9, CBC-TV), was outstanding and we are deeply appreciative of the CBC's interest in the problem of arthritis. So many aspects of this dreaded disease were highlighted on the program and we were particularly pleased to note the emphasis placed on the importance of early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

—Alberta Division,
Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism
Society,
809 Centre St. S., Calgary.

• Your Close-Up program (December 9, CBC-TV) presented this community health problem in an interesting way. The Canadian Arthritis Society and in particular our own Manitoba Division, has received favourable comments. It is our hope and aim that all arthritis sufferers receive honest factual information and treatment for their condition.

The Looking Glass People

• Thank you for your most artistic program on CBC-TV (Candid Camera, December 10), with its beautifully-spoken commentary. More please of this kind of feature.

Aid to the Student

• I enjoy your programs immensely, especially I.Q. on Sundays and your dramas. Your commentaries are also helpful to me since I am a student in a public-speaking class.

Sir John Gielgud

SIR JOHN GIELGUD

FOR SOMEONE WHOSE drama teacher once told him despairingly that he walked "exactly like a cat with rickets," Sir John Gielgud has come a long way in the more than 40 years he has served the theatre.

He was knighted in 1953, "And about time," said the rest of the acting fraternity who, with the critics, consider him the foremost interpreter of Shakespeare in this generation.

In their opinion the only other actors who can be compared with Sir John are Sir Laurence Olivier and Sir Ralph Richardson. Gielgud may not have Olivier's heroic stature (he is a slight man with more of an ascetic look than Olivier), or Richardson's brooding presence. He may not have their extensive vocal resources, though he has a voice of incomparable quality, but he has such a fastidious standard of taste and judgment, such a rare insight and high regard for the music of well-written lines, that his every appearance is anticipated with excitement.

He wears the seal of stardom elegantly and almost shyly, as viewers will see Tuesday night, January 8, on CBC-TV's The Lively Arts, when this brilliant actor-director discusses his career

A REMINDER to farmers in the Winnipeg, Brandon and Yorkton areas: This Business of Farming is scheduled January 15-17, on CBWT, CKX-TV and CKOS-TV.

The television short course, covering livestock production, quality cream production, raising of quality swine, the cost of credit and the seeding, fertilizing, harvesting and storage of field crops, will be seen 10:30 a.m. to noon each morning. It is produced by the CBC in co-operation with the Manitoba Department of Agriculture and the University of Manitoba.

A NEW DRAMA SERIES from the Prairies starts Tuesday night on CBC Radio. Prairie Theatre will, for the first time on CBC Radio, present radio dramas produced in Regina and Edmonton with actors from those cities.

First two dramas in the series come from Regina. The Strange History of the Satisfied Man, January 8, will star John Buller, with Margaret Woodward, Fraser Sutherland, Phyllis Wilson, Carol-Gay Bell, Mary McNeill and Joe Fisher. On January 15, A Game of Solitaire will be acted by Phyllis Wilson, Mary Jo Kinzel, Bob Hill, Stan Beadnell, Steve Arsenych, Cal Abrahamson, Ann Sutherland, Jean Freeman, Sheila Quigley and Rhena Howard.

The next two dramas are from Edmonton. In Side Show, January 22, will be Shirley Higginson, Frank Glenfield, Shelley Lambert, Ian Wilkie, Walter Kaasa, Lee Royce and Mickey MacDonald. On January 29, Abel's Girl will be heard, with John Noreyko, Gavin Bright, Vernis Christie, Wilma Crozier and Olga Roland.

Winnipeg drama producer Gus Kristjanson travelled to the two cities to produce and record the four plays.

LATE NIGHT THEATRE, Fridays at 10:30 p.m. on CBC Radio, will carry more drama from the Prairies during the next six weeks. Produced in Winnipeg, the plays will be adaptations by George Salverson of stories by H. R. Percy, from The Timeless Island and Other Stories. First of the series was to be heard Friday, January 4.

A COLLECTION OF children's art inspired by the School Broadcast series It's Fun to Draw, can be seen during January at the Boissevain Regional Library, Boissevain, Man.

Seen during November at the downtown branch of the Winnipeg Public Library, the collection has attracted favourable comment from many. Miss Gertrude McCance, supervisor of school broadcasts for the Manitoba department of education, describes the paintings as "colourful, creative, free and exciting." They were done by students in grades four to eight, in both rural and urban schools of Manitoba.

On Our Cover . . .

The Jacksons and Their Neighbours has been amusing listeners to the Farm Broadcast on the Prairies for many years. Written by Mary Rogers Pattison, the dramas are produced at CBC Winnipeg by Gus Kristjanson.

Aku - Aku:

Heyerdahl's Easter Island Expedition

THE NAVEL OF the world, tiny, triangular (10 miles to a side) Easter Island in a desolate reach of the South Pacific, is considered to be the loneliest outpost, its nearest neighbours 1,000 miles away, and its only regular contact with the outside being a Chilean warship which calls there briefly once a year with provisions. Living east of the sun and west of the moon, its people feel closer to the stars than to the rest of the world, and know more about the Milky Way than about the 20th century.

But the rest of the world, at least the scientific part of it, knows Easter Island, for it has long been famous for its mysterious giant statues of long-eared men, up to 70 tons in weight and 40 feet high, standing or lying all over the rocky slopes of the volcanic island in splendid silence. They have puzzled scientists for centuries, for they represent an engineering feat almost as marvelous as the pyramids; but, because of the island's isolation, very little archeological research has been done there.

Norwegian adventurer Thor Heyerdahl has the theory that the statues were made by a race of incredible builders who inhabited the island many centuries ago, and who came originally from South America, 2,000 miles away. In 1947 Heyerdahl proved that it was possible for early South Americans to sail that far from home on a primitive raft, when, with some intrepid companions, he built a raft of balsa logs and made the journey to the South Pacific safely, and then wrote a book about it, called The Kon-Tiki Expedition, which turned out to be a best-seller.

Then, in 1955, he headed into now familiar waters on board a staunch fishing vessel he had chartered for a year—a converted Greenland trawler, The Christian Bjelland, equipped with radar and all sorts of modern comforts. He was accompanied by his wife, Yvonne, his 16-year-old son, Thor, Jr., his two-year old daughter, Annette, five archeologists—three from the United States, one from Chile, and one from Norway—a cameraman, and a frogman, in addition to the regular crew. His object: to probe the mystery of the people who had carved and erected the famous statues, and perhaps find other artifacts and ruins which might be a tangible link between the Islanders and the South American mainland.

Heyerdahl believed that the statues were similar in many respects to the work of South American Indians, who could have reached Easter Island on the same current which had carried Heyerdahl's Kon-Tiki expedition across the South Pacific. Later he found many similarities in customs, language, and superstitions between the Islanders and South American Indians.

The first trace of man on Easter Island dates back to 400 A.D., but for centuries few men have ever ventured there. Those who did were often slave-traders, cannibals, warriors or small-pox bearers, so the Islanders have reason to be suspicious of visitors, but they had heard of Heyerdahl's Kon-Tiki trip and were curious to meet him. And one of the most stimulating aspects of his stay there, quite apart from the remarkable archeological discoveries he made, was the impact of him and his expedition on the natives. The island is owned by Chile, which maintains there a governor, a doctor and a schoolmaster, but the real authority is the very old and devoted Roman Catholic priest, who is like a father to them all. Although Christians, they are dominated by superstition and a trace of devil-worship still exists.

Heyerdahl vividly describes his meeting with them and getting to know them. In his book about the expedition, Aku-Aku, published in Britain by (Please turn to page 31)

INTERTEL:

Is Tourism Spoiling Paradise?

*A special program from INTERTEL visits Tahiti, once a lonely, beautiful
South Pacific island, now a tourist mecca*

SINCE THE 1890's, when Paul Gauguin went to Tahiti to live a lazy and luxurious life, and to create some of his finest paintings, the South Sea island has been associated in the public mind with a care-free paradise, where one can really "get away from it all."

But until rapid jet-travel brought the Pacific island within a few hours' flying time of Australia and North America, few travellers availed themselves of the opportunity to visit that paradise. In the last couple of years, following the construction of an air-strip on the island, the situation has changed drastically. Tourism has arrived in Tahiti with a bang, and the repercussions are being felt throughout the island, as its inhabitants are exposed, with startling suddenness, to a whole new way of life.

The effects of these changes are studied in Tahiti—Pacific Cocktail, an hour-long program to be seen on CBC Television, Friday, January 11. Produced by the Australian Broadcasting Commission, the film is ABC's contribution to Intertel, the International Association of Broadcasters, pledged to promote wider understanding of world affairs and problems through the exchange of documentary television programs.

The program traces the abrupt changes in the Islanders' lives by studying three young Tahitians: two girls—Leone Tairapa and Marie Metuarea, and a boy—Edgar Tua.

Leone, 21, has coped successfully with the changes that have wrenched the island. Brought up partly in Tahiti and partly in France, where she was educated, she now works as an air hostess for the French Air-line Tai, which operates a jet service to Tahiti.

But the others, both in their 'teens, do not understand fully the meaning of the new influences that are affecting them. Their early years were spent in the tradition-filled atmosphere of their home villages, where Marie Louise helped her family with domestic chores and Edgar spent much of his time fishing in the lagoon. Now, Marie Louise has taken a job as housemaid at a hotel, and Edgar is employed as a labourer at the phosphate mines. He hopes to save enough to buy a motor-scooter, a radio, and an out-board motor for his outrigger canoe, but his imagination cannot carry him beyond those goals. He may expect that, having obtained these prized possessions, he will return to the simple, unhurried life of his village. But that way of life may well have disappeared by the time he's ready to go back. Neither of the youths is particularly ambitious, nor do they have any desire for, nor understanding of, wealth or success.

Tahiti, the main island of the Society group, lies mid-way between Australia and the west coast of the Americas, in the southern part of the Pacific. It is 4,108 miles from Los Angeles and 4,183 miles from Sydney. The island is part of French Polynesia, a French overseas territory administrated by a governor appointed by the French government, and a five-man cabinet elected by a territorial assembly which is elected, in turn, by the populace.

The island is 37 miles long by 25 miles wide, mountainous with luxuriant sub-tropical vegetation. Of its population of 40,000, about 5,000 are Chinese and 2,000 European. The rest are Polynesians, members of the attractive, gentle race that also inhabits Hawaii, Samoa, Tonga and other islands of the South Pacific.

Tahiti was discovered in 1606, and was claimed in the name of France in 1768 by the French explorer, Bourgainville. The island was ruled under a monarchy until 1880, when Tahiti's last king was forced to cede his kingdom to France.

Until recently, Tahiti's income came mainly from its exports of phosphates and copra, and from substantial, regular gifts from Metropolitan France. But in 1958 it became obvious that one of these sources was fast disappearing: the rich phosphate mines were almost worked out and experts predicted that the supply would be completely exhausted by the end of the 1960's. The other major product, copra, was

FESTIVAL:

VenusObserved

David Dodimead
and Martha Henry.

Monday, January 7, FESTIVAL presents a Christopher Fry play about a duke
and his dilemma

VENUS OBSERVED, which Christopher Fry considers his best play, was commissioned by Sir Laurence Olivier in 1949 to launch his career as an independent actor-manager. Fry writes slowly, often only about five lines a night—he prefers working between midnight and dawn—and when Venus Observed was almost due to begin rehearsal, he was still working on the last act. So Olivier, naturally a bit worried, sent him a package containing a new typewriter, typewriter ribbon, machine oil and brush, and a tactful note offering to supply any further needs.

This reminder did the trick. Midnight oil burned steadily in Fry's study, and the play opened on schedule and ran 30 weeks. In it, Fry offers some of his richest verse and warmest, most puckish humour. It's an autumn play, one in a series dealing with each of the seasons. And some of its phrases are like bright autumn leaves which make you want to pluck them from their surroundings and take them home to admire and turn over at leisure.

Venus Observed is the story of a lonely duke in the autumn of his life, a gentle, highly cultivated man with a lively sense of humour, and greatly attractive to women. His fires, though not banked, are muted by his accumulated years, and now, after having lived happily from season to season, from one romantic adventure to another, he has become tired of the chase, and decides to settle down with one of the three most lasting of his former mistresses. But which one? He invites them to his rooftop observatory to watch an eclipse of the sun, and asks his son, Edgar, to give an apple to the one he considers most suitable.

The role of the Duke of Altair will be played by David Dodimead, with Barbara Chilcott as Rosabel, one of the Duke's former loves; Tony Van Bridge as Reedbeck, his agent, and Martha Henry as the lovely Perpetua.

The play was edited for CBC by Alice Sinclair and Paul Almond. Sets are by Rudi Dorn and costumes by Horst Dantz. This is the fourth Fry production on which Almond, Dorn and Dantz have collaborated.

There have been several interpretations of Venus Observed in its successful history. Almond says he sees it "as a comedy. I'm more concerned with the interplay between the images of spring and summer, represented by Edgar and Perpetua, and those of autumn, represented by the duke. All through the play we can see how the duke is being prepared for winter, in the blaze of autumn. In the spring he looked on autumn as a terrible season, but now that it has arrived, he is coming to see its glories in a new light, almost reveling in the fresh, relaxing season it offers. What we set out to do was to achieve this effect with a blend of realism and poetry, to create a mood or emotion rather than to give a specific image."

A 90-minute performance of Venus Observed, produced by Paul Almond, will be seen on CBC-TV's Festival on Monday night, January 7.

Words not found in the smaller dictionaries exasperate some theatre-goers, who feel they aren't allowed enough time to chew on Fry's tantalizing verbal morsels as they come whipping along. But it isn't always necessary to understand the meaning of all Fry's words, for the music of their sound easily takes the listener piggy-back to more familiar ground. But just to make sure that no viewer is left panting from a surfeit of language goodies, Almond has paced his production so that periods of silence occur from time to time, and he has provided two intervals for digestion.

What's Happening to The Family?

CITIZENS' FORUM on both radio and TV delves into the problems facing the family in Canada today in a new series

THE SENTIMENTALIZED view of the family seems to be fading away. Now the family is recognized quite openly as an institution with many frightening characteristics. For every person who sees it as a haven of security, which it often is, there are many others who try to escape its tentacles. And in marriage, the legal basis for family life, the promise "for better, for worse" is sometimes repeated at the altar with mental reservations such as "as long as his parents don't live with us," or "long as our children are healthy and bright." The modern way of living accumulates stress and tension which are eating greedily into the traditional concepts of family life. Some think this shaking-up is what the family needs. Certainly, until a new formula for family living is found which responds to the needs of a technological society, there are bound to be misfits and maladjustments.

Starting this week, Citizens' Forum will present The Family, a series of programs on TV and radio which look into fairly common problems affecting family well-being. On TV, the issue will be dramatized in simple terms and then discussed by a panel of experienced persons. The TV series will be seen on five successive Sundays, beginning January 6. The radio series will extend over 10 weeks (Thursdays at 9:00 p.m., beginning January 10). Each topic on radio will be discussed by experts in two cities, and in the next broadcast listeners in two other selected cities will report their opinions on the subject and the way it was approached on the air the preceding week.

Scripts and research for the TV series are by Monroe Scott. The host and moderator of the panel discussions will be Bernard Ostry of the Social Science and Humanities Research Council, Ottawa. Production will be in the Ottawa studios by Betty Zimmerman and Cameron Graham. The programs are being produced in co-operation with the Canadian Association for Adult Education, which has prepared a pamphlet to accompany the series. It can be obtained by sending 25 cents to Citizens' Forum, 113 St. George Street, Toronto.

As program organizer Christina McDougall points out, the dramatizations are not meant to be serious case histories or psychological studies, but they are presented in simple human terms the average layman has experienced or can easily understand from his own observations. Various church groups have indicated that they are planning to use the radio and TV series as part of their regular discussion programs.

The subject of the January 6 program on TV will be the retarded child. A marriage of 10 years is on the point of breaking up. It was happy until the third child was born—retarded. The parents cannot agree what to do with the child, and their differences have become so deep that legal separation seems the only answer. The discussion will centre around whether the child should remain within the family or be sent to an appropriate institution.

Panelists in the discussion following the dramatized portion of the program will be Mrs. Althea Armour, mother of a retarded child; Dr. H. F. Frank, Director of the Ontario Hospital for Retarded Children in Smith's Falls, and Donald Zarfes, head of the Children's Psychiatric Research Institute in London, Ontario.

The Push-Button Woman on January 13 offers a lighthearted look at the "ideal" housewife in her super-mechanical kitchen. But it has implications which are not so lighthearted. When technology lifted heavy drudgery from the housewife, did it also carry away important side benefits? Is the mod-

FESTIVAL: VENUS OBSERVED

David Dodimead says that the Duke of Altair in Venus Observed is one of his favourite roles. He played it just once before, with the Coventry Repertory Theatre, when, he claims, he "was too young for the part." Recently he completed a round-the-world tour with the Old Vic Company of England, working with Vivien Leigh in The Lady of the Camelias (Camille)—a new stage adaptation by former CBC Radio producer Andrew Allan. Although this is Dodimead's first CBC-TV appearance, it is not his first visit to Canada. He has toured the country with stage companies, playing Shakespearean roles with the Donald Wolfitt Company

Bugs Bunny

This Is A Life? Elmer Fudd takes over as emcee for a cartoon take-off on a television show.

Countrytime

Trout on a Dairy Farm. Pat Brennan visits the Frank Edgells farm at Saltspring Island.

Gardener Stan Westaway discusses books on gardening, the greenhouse and home.

Ski School

Second of a four-part series on skiing. Real Charette and Lucille Wheeler demonstrate basic instruction for novice skiers. Narrator is Doug Smith.

Beverly Hillbillies

Jed invites his relatives to visit him in California but soon realizes that his 32-room house won't contain all his clan.

The Nurses

An hour-long series dramatizing the professional and personal lives of nurses in their day-to-day relationship with doctors and patients.

Red River Jamboree

Western songs and stories, with balladeer Stu Phillips and the cast.

Special guest is yodeller Donn Reynolds. A few of their selections:

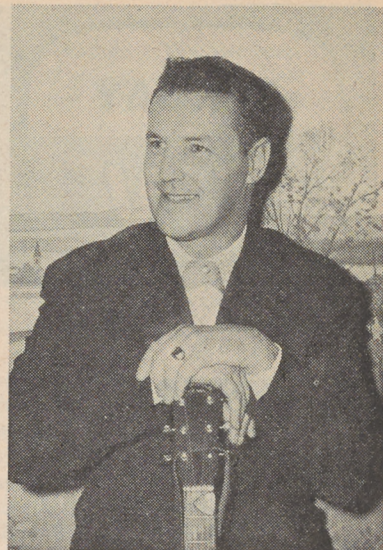

Girl in Saskatoon	Stu
Winter's Here Again	Peggy
She Taught Me to Yodel	Donn
Storm	Alton

NHL Hockey

Danny Gallivan reports from the Montreal Forum as the Montreal Canadiens play host to the New York Rangers.

CBWT-Thriller

Big Blackout. A man discovers that he was involved in a narcotics ring while suffering from amnesia.

Yodeller Donn Reynolds is guest Saturday on Red River Jamboree, with Stu Phillips, Peggy Neville and the cast.

and the Old Vic, and two years ago he appeared at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre as Dr. Livesey in "Treasure Island." He also appears on recordings, reading Shakespeare and Dickens with British stars Margaret Leighton, Anthony Quale and Pamela Brown.

Martha Henry, who plays Perpetua, graduated last spring from the National Theatre School in Montreal, where her husband, Donnelly Rhodes (who plays Edgar) is in his final year. This will be their first appearance together on TV. In the Stratford Festival last summer Miss Henry played Miranda in "The Tempest," and more recently appeared in the feminine lead at Toronto's Crest Theatre in Giraudoux's "The Enchanted," which opened December 12.

Program Notes

JANUARY 6

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

CBXT-Saturday Heroes

CBC sportscasters Ernie Afaganis and Glenn Bjarnason spotlight 13-year-olds and under in the Edmonton Boys' Basketball League. Half-time entertainment is an exhibition of girls' "pingminton"—a combination of ping pong and badminton played on a badminton court. (A repeat of Saturday's telecast.)

Country Calendar

A look back at Agriculture using film highlights taken from 1962 Country Calendar programs.

Time Of Your Life

An hour-long show of interest to the whole family but specifically of interest to children in the 10-to-15 age group. Host is 19-year-old Toronto actor and university student Peter Kastner who introduces young people having the time of their lives by experiencing things.

Today, young people are seen dancing, singing, debating, creating poetry, watching and playing. A group of eight young dancers under 16 perform dance numbers with choreography by Gladys Forrester. A chorus of singers from 6 to 16 are under the direction of Dr. William McCauley. Four high school students debate the subject: Does everybody expect too much from young people? Film shows what horses and young football players look like in slow motion; and a British film Jessy, shows a little spastic girl in a wheelchair and her adventures with other children as she adjusts to a new environment.

Speaking French

Professor Jean-Paul Vinay, director of the department of linguistics at the University of Montreal and his assistant Rena Berzin teach the French language by using the blackboard, flash-cards and other visual aids, with verbal instruction.

Lister Sinclair Sunday introduces a new series of programs on The Nature of Things. The weekly science series is intended for adults, using high-quality science film from world-wide sources.

Heritage

Old Saint Paul's. The history of Canada's oldest Anglican church, St. Paul's Church in Halifax, is traced by its architectural points of historical interest, with narration by the present rector, Canon H. S. Hilchey. The church was built in 1749, from plans of London's Marylebone Chapel, which the Hon. Edward Cornwallis, founder of Halifax, brought with him to Canada. Historical features include the Baptismal font dating back to Charles I, the guest book and the special pew which is only occupied by members of the Royal Family.

20/20

The Caplin Skull. A documentary filmed off the coast of Newfoundland showing the arrival of the small caplin fish, an edible fish mainly used for codfish bait.

Twentieth Century

Zero Hour in Greece. An historical film shows the German invasion of Greece in the Second World War and the civil war between communists and the Greek government following the war. Recent interviews with eyewitnesses who recall these events are also included. Host for the series is Walter Cronkite.

Citizens' Forum

The Family — The Retarded Child. First of a five-part series about social problems facing present-day families. Today, a married couple disagree on what to do with their retarded child. Their differences are so deep that legal separation seems to be the only answer. A panel of experts discusses whether the child should remain within the family or be sent to an appropriate institution. Host and moderator is Bernard Ostry.

Panel consists of: Mrs. Althea Armour, Toronto mother of a retarded child; Dr. H. F. Frank, director of the Ontario Hospital School for Retarded Children, Smiths Falls, Ont., and Dr. Bernard Zarfas, director of the Psychiatric Research Institute for Children, London, Ont.

The Nature Of Things

On this opening program in a new 26-week series, consultant Lister Sinclair introduces subject-ideas for presentation, tells why they were chosen, and explains the research undertaken for each subject and the ideas behind them.

Walt Disney

Three Tall Tales. Professor Ludwig Von Drake discusses liars and legends and presents three cartoons as examples—Casey at the Bat, Windwagon Smith and Paul Bunyan.

Hazel

Hazel and three other maids audition for the state fair song festival.

Flashback

Panelists Alan Millar, Allan Manings, Margaret Morris and guest panelist comedienne Barbara Hamilton attempt to identify famous persons, objects and fads of the past. Moderator is Paul Soles.

Bonanza

A man spends a few days at the Ponderosa, endangering both the Cartwrights and the ranch.

Close-Up

J. Frank Willis is host as CBC camera crews and reporters delve into a currently important topic.

CBWT-Of Ballads and Bards

Folksingers Reg Gibson and Jim Pirie return with a program of folk music sung in a quiet, intimate style.

CBXT—Thriller

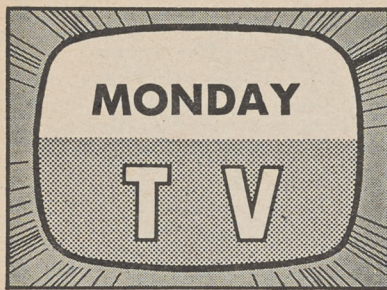

The Cheaters. A down-and-out actor visits a snobbish household during Christmas and starts a mysterious chain of events.

THE NATURE OF THINGS:

Car Crashes, Migration, Cancer and Hypnosis . . .

WHAT HAPPENS in a car crash? Why do birds migrate, and how do they know where to go? What evidence links smoking to lung cancer? How is hypnosis used in medicine?

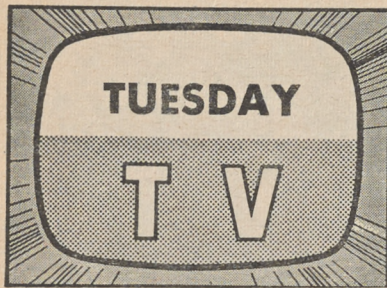

These questions seem to have little relation to each other, but there is a common denominator: they are all answered during this year's series of The Nature of Things, on CBC Television. The 26-week series, encompassing many aspects of science from astronomy to zoology, returns to the TV network Sunday afternoon, January 6.

"We'll try to give a good balance between the physical sciences (physics, chemistry, astronomy, mathematics) and the life sciences (biology, medicine)," says program organizer John Livingston, who plans the series in co-operation with producer James Murray and consultant Lister Sinclair. "Both areas received good reaction from our viewing audience last season."

Most of those who contributed to the 1962 series will return this season. Dr. Patterson Hume and Dr. Donald Ivey, of the University of Toronto, will take part in a number of programs, and Lister Sinclair will appear several times, as well as Donald Crowdis, of the Nova Scotia Science Museum.

The programs will include film footage gathered from many sources around the world and interviews with leading Canadian, American and European scientists. On the first telecast, Sinclair will discuss the "scientific approach"—the method employed by

The New North. Beginning a series of five programs introducing students to what is for most Canadians a land of mystery—the Northwest Territories, an area occupying nearly one-third of Canada, yet containing fewer than 25,000 people. Some people still tend to think of the Territories in traditional terms as a land of great isolation and primitive living conditions. The programs will show the North as it actually is—the new North where science and technology are continually bringing about tremendous changes. Host for the series is Doug Wilkinson, an authority on Canada's Northlands.

Today, Land of Many Faces.

CBXT—Children Of The World

Hostess Betty Nickerson introduces a collection of paintings done by children from around the world. The theme of the collection is animals of the world. Producer, A. P. H. Scott.

CBXT—Gateway

Co-hosts Jim Crossen and Jim Schrumm present the regular Tuesday feature—Law For The Layman, with S. S. Lieberman, Q.C., and Ralph Hyde discussing the legal aspects of automobile accidents.

CBWT—Our Man Higgins

Panic reigns in the household when a statue sent by Duncan's mother is broken just prior to her paying them a visit.

CBWT—Junior Hi-Lites

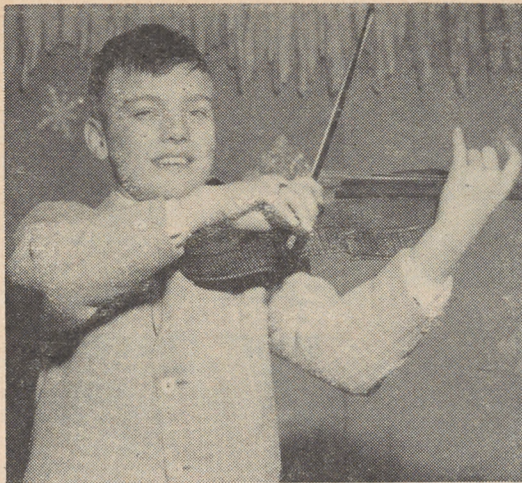

Returning to Channel 3 for its fourth season, this amateur talent series features boys and girls from junior high schools, singing, dancing and playing musical instruments. They will be in competition for cash talent awards which are presented on the final grand award show.

Winners in the last quarter's series of Calling All Children on CBWT have been announced. They are: upper left, violinist Randy Benson (first); lower left, dancers Gaye Burgess, Janice Douglas, Alixe MacLean and Patricia Zelisney, listed clockwise (second); lower right, baton twirler Marilyn Bartman (third) and upper right, singer Julia Pal, special award winner for contestants under six.

This year, the weekly winners are chosen by a panel of three adjudicators: Ken Winters, drama and music critic; Dave Robertson, well-known actor and producer, and Jack Shapira, musician and television performer.

Bill Guest and Chuck Skelding return to host the program with the musical accompaniment being supplied by Harold Green. Produced by Don Browne-Wilkinson.

CBXT—Our Man Higgins

Higgins reluctantly agrees to entertain nightly in his nephew's coffee house to attract the crowds.

Front Page Challenge

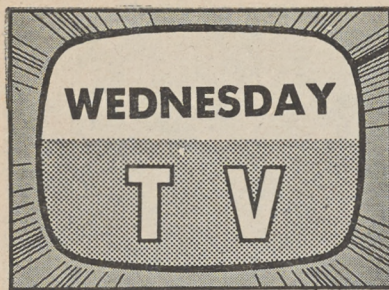

Gordon Sinclair, Pierre Berton, Betty Kennedy and guest panelist Jack Webster try to identify famous news headlines associated with guest challengers. Fred Davis is moderator.

The Lively Arts

A Conversation with Gielgud. Lister Sinclair converses with Sir John Gielgud about his theatrical career, including acting and directing.

CBWT—The Gallant Men

Boast Not Of Tomorrow. Benedict becomes puzzled by a war nurse's apathetic attitude when he tells her that her fiancé is missing in action.

Scarlett Hill

Hannah. Continuation of the story in which a young man experiencing financial troubles in the investment field is hindered by his wife's extravagance and snobbishness.

CBXT—Junior Hi-Lites

Jim Mitchell hosts a new talent show for Edmonton juniors from the age of 12 to 14.

CBXT—Dobie Gillis

Dobie narrowly escapes becoming a member of an acrobatic act.

My Three Sons

Mike's belief that he is a lady killer almost causes his downfall when he sets out to propose to a beautiful woman several years old than himself.

Parade

Sing! Sing! Sing! Songs and dances featuring the Gino Silvi Singers, soloist Pat Hervey and a group of dancers. Set in a circus atmosphere under the big top, the cast dressed as clowns mime several circus acts, including the high wire, trapeze, bear on a bicycle and lion-tamer acts. Numbers include:

Little Girl Blue	Pat Hervey
Oklahoma!	Bill Walker and Choir
Breezin' Along with the Breeze	Pat Hervey
Be a Clown	Choir

Ben Casey

A dedicated and serious-minded neurologist faces up to the cold facts of the medical world at the County General.

CBC Newsmagazine

Norman DePoe presents an in-depth report on an item of current interest and importance.

The Formative Years

Road to Confederation. A five-part National Film Board series telling the stories of people and events at the boiling point of Canada's struggle for self-government, and giving an accurate portrayal of history as it happened.

Part IV. The Big Man. (Charles Tupper). On Canada's first Confederation Day, July 1, 1867, anti-confederates hung black crepe over their doors in Halifax—symbol of mourning for the death of a province.

But Charles Tupper, newly-elected premier, had caught John A. Macdonald's vision of a dominion reaching from sea to sea. He saw in the union of the Maritime provinces with the other British colonies of North America, a better future for all and a safeguard against annexation by the American states. William Needles portrays Tupper.

CBXT—The Gallant Men

Advance and Be Recognized. D'Angelo faces a court martial when he wounds a comrade while on guard duty.

Curling Show Returns This Week

by
DON WITTMAN
CBC Winnipeg

THE VIEWING SCHEDULE for the sports buff on the CBC Television Network in 1963 should be every bit as entertaining as the programming of the past 12 months, if the line-up during the opening days of this new year is any indication.

Last week, viewers were treated to the Rose Bowl Game, and this Saturday Cross Canada Curling makes its return to the viewing schedule. The nation's top curlers are featured in this ten-week series of straight knockout curling competition. The first match from the Rossmere Curling Club in Winnipeg has last year's Dominion Curling Champions, the Ernie Richardson foursome from Regina, trading shots with Norm Houck's powerful group from the Winnipeg Strathcona Club.

In last year's Brier, Richardson, Houck and Hec Gervais of Edmonton finished in a three-way tie for first place at the close of regular play. In the playoff, the Richardson's drew the bye, and Houck faced Gervais in a sudden-death battle, which was won by the Alberta curlers. Gervais then was beaten by Richardson, marking the third time that the Regina curlers had won the coveted MacDonald Brier tankard. And in so doing Richardson added his name to curling history, joining Matt Baldwin and Ken Watson as the only three-time winners of the Brier.

The Richardson's then travelled overseas and captured the Scotch Cup, emblematic of world curling supremacy, also for the third time.

This year there is one important change in the Richardson family rink. Wes Richardson, who throws lead

Program Notes

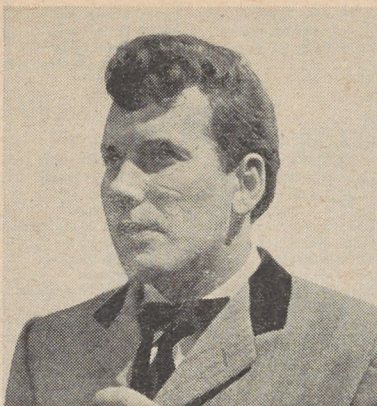

JANUARY 10

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

National Schools

Canadian History. Beginning a series of five programs built around outstanding political leaders in the turbulent history of Canada's 19th Century—Joseph Howe, Alexander Galt, John A. Macdonald, Charles Tupper and Georges Etienne Cartier. The films were produced by the National Film Board of Canada and have been shown previously on the CBC-TV network.

Each program dramatizes episodes in the life of each man, attempting to show his personality, emotions, dreams and problems.

Today, The Tribune of Nova Scotia (Joseph Howe).

Scarlett Hill

Hannah. Conclusion of the story in which a woman comes to the aid of her daughter and son-in-law when they experience financial difficulty.

Scarlet Pimpernel

The Elusive Chauvin. Starring Marius Goring as the Scarlet Pimpernel.

CBWT—Stop, Look and Listen

Marlborough receives a letter from a distant relative. The news in the letter causes quite a disturbance among the rest of the cast and proves very upsetting to Charlemagne.

Hobbies 'n Handicrafts. Geoff Spurr moves on to stage three in his model race-car project and demonstrates how to build the power supply to control the track, using batteries or building a power pack. The homemade lever type of controller also gives reverse operation. Producer, Don Browne-Wilkinson.

CBWT—Reach For The Top

The winners of last week's program play a team from Elmwood High School consisting of George Durnin, Alan Alvare, Leila Innes and Bob Pawlik. Producer, Jean Mackay.

Playdate

You Can't Win 'Em All, by Alun Owen. Hired as a wireless operator by a band of South American revolutionaries, a Britisher is strictly neutral despite his liking for the rebel leader's sister.

Starring Neil McCallum, George Sperdakos, Leo Ciceri and Michelle Balletto with Larry Zahab and Al Kozlik. Produced by Paul Almond.

CBWT—Travel Unlimited

A filmed visit to Mexico. Host is Bob Burton.

scientists in tackling problems—and will explain how The Nature of Things plans to present its subjects during the series. The topics of succeeding programs are as follows:

Brainwashing. Jan. 13—An examination of the nature and techniques of thought control.

Tubes to Transistors (Jan. 20)—Transistors produce the same results as vacuum tubes, but are smaller, last longer, and use less power. Drs. Hume and Ivey talk about the entry into the transistor age.

From Water to Land (Jan. 27)—The development of lungs and legs was not originally to help fish become amphibians but to enable fish to survive long periods of drought, claims Dr. A. S. Romer of Harvard University.

The Chemistry of Salt (Feb. 3)—A grain of common table salt is one of the miracles of nature—a crystal. Dr. F. H. Knelman of Montreal discusses sources and make-up of salt and explains some of its industrial uses.

Ear Operation (Feb. 10)—A BBC film showing an extremely delicate ear operation to restore hearing. The operation, observed through the surgeon's microscope, is carried out with instruments no larger than needles.

The Way the Ball Bounces (Feb. 17)—Drs. Hume and Ivey describe some of the properties of rubber and explain why it doesn't fit into the usual classifications of matter—solids, liquids and gases.

Lie Detectors (Feb. 24)—Under certain types of stress, respiration, circulation and other functions can be affected, and these effects can be studied to reveal whether or not a person is lying. Program studies the autonomic nervous system and what it can reveal.

Smoking and Lung Cancer (March 3)—Prepared in co-operation with the National Cancer Institute and the Canadian Cancer Society, the program explores the results of intensive lung cancer research in Britain and North America.

Science Museums (March 10)—It has been proposed that Canada build a national museum of science to commemorate the Canadian Centennial in 1967. This program reports on what is being done in other parts of the world to interpret science to the public.

Count On Me (March 17)—Drs. Hume and Ivey discuss computers and how they work, with an introduction to binary counting.

Program Notes

JANUARY 11

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

Nursery School Time

Miss Teddy and Hoppy the Bunny present adventures for small children.

Western Schools

A five-part series explaining the adaptation and behaviour of plants and animals in relation to their environment.

Written and narrated by Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan, head of the department of zoology, University of British Columbia. Produced by Tom Connachie.

Today, Contact. The story of the advance of animals from simple, slow-moving creatures with automatic responses to a few stimuli, into highly complicated, fast-moving creatures with at least some intelligent reaction due to ever-better sensory organs.

Loretta Young

Loretta Young is hostess for this half-hour of drama.

Scarlett Hill

Rovers and Lovers. Beginning a new week-long episode in which an old man, needing an eye operation, refuses help from his friends and rents rooms in his house. His first boarder is a mysterious man.

Tahiti, an idyllic South Pacific island, has undergone tremendous changes since it became a popular tourist haven. Intertel presents a penetrating study of the situation Friday, in a special program.

Friday Island

Where There's A Will. When Tadpole tries to make friends with Pete, Aunt Vi and Mom Grainger meet for the first time.

CBWT—Warren's Corner

Features of interest to older children, with Warren Davis as host. Jeff Anderson, producer.

CBWT—Sergeant Bilko

Bilko's Acres. When rumours fly that Fort Baxter is to be abandoned, Bilko buys adjacent swampland cheap hoping to resell at a big profit.

CBXT—Keynotes

A new Channel 5 musical variety showcase featuring Tommy Banks on piano and Harry Boon on the organ with two guest vocalists weekly.

Intertel

Tahiti — Pacific Cocktail. A study of the impact of tourism on Tahiti and its people. The program examines the effect of the increasingly large number of tourists which visit the island paradise in the Pacific.

The economy of the island, largely dependent on phosphate mines which are rapidly running out, is undergoing a change and tourism has been fostered as a replacement. Three young Tahitians — Leone Tairapa, Marie Louise Metuarea and Edga: Tua are featured in the film.

The film shows scenes of phosphate mining, the airport, the capital, Papeete, and contrasts between the native way of life and the new way of the white man.

CBXT—I'm Dickens, He's Fenster

Kate causes confusion when she insists on bids for a carpentry job on Dickens' house.

Tommy Ambrose

Tommy's special guest is U.S. comedian-impressionist Frank Gorshin.

CBXT—Perspective

An in-depth study of Edmonton's social and economic problems.

Empire

End of an Image. Tal Garret and his friend Jay give a lift to a young woman and her son but their good deed ends in a fight and a stay in jail.

CBWT—Candid Camera

Host Durwood Kirby catches people off-guard in everyday happenings and off-beat situations.

CBWT—Biography

General J. J. Pershing. The U.S. soldier who made an astonishing rise from humble circumstances to become general of the U.S. armies, a rank held previously only by George Washington. During the first World War it was Pershing who created almost from nothing, the vast structure of the U.S. national army.

Program Notes

11:30 a.m.—Sports College

Lloyd "Ace" Percival gives hints for developing athletic skill.

1:00 p.m.—Metropolitan Opera

Die Meistersinger. Opera in three acts by Wagner.

Cast: Otto Edelmann as Hans Sachs; Lisa Della Casa as Eva; Sandor Konya as Walther von Stolzing; Karl Doench as Beckmesser; Charles Anthony as David; and Ezio Flagello as Pogner. Conducted by Joseph Rosenstock. Place, Nuremberg. Time, the 16th Century.

Act I. The interior of St. Catherine's Church. Walther von Stolzing sees Eva at a service and they are attracted to each other. Magdalena explains that Eva's father, the goldsmith and master-singer Veit Pogner, will give her hand in marriage to the victor at the prize singing on St. John's Day. Walther makes application to the assembled mastersingers to take part in the competition. Beckmesser also seeks Eva's hand and is greatly displeased. The masters agree to give Walther a trial. Beckmesser takes his station as marker behind a curtain and Walther begins his song. Beckmesser maliciously notes one error after another so that the decision of the guild is against Walther, though Hans Sachs is much taken by his song.

Act II. Street between Pogner's house and the corner house in which Hans Sachs has his workshop. Pogner arrives with Eva. When Walther appears she impulsively rushes to him. After he has angrily denounced the mastersingers she agrees to fly with him immediately. She exchanges headcovering and cape with Magdalena who has heard of Beckmesser's intention to serenade Eva. The loving couple retire to the shadow of Pogner's house just as Beckmesser arrives. He begins his song but Sachs constantly interrupts him with his hammering. Soon there is a great commotion in the street and Walther attempts to escape with Eva. Sachs discovers them and drags Walther into his workshop while Eva runs to her home. Quiet is restored and the street is emptied as the moon rises.

Act III. A room in the house of Sachs. The master sits musing in his armchair and meditates on the folly of mankind as shown by the riot of the night before. Walther relates a wondrous dream and frames it as a song. Sachs styles it a "master lied." While the knight and Sachs go to dress for the festival, Beckmesser enters and finding the song, puts it in his pocket and departs. When Eva arrives Walther comes forth and sings his master song. Eva throws herself in Sachs's arms and from sheer excitement and joy, begs him to sing in the contest. Unknown to all, Sachs loves Eva. He tells her he knows the story of Tristan and Isolde and has no desire to play the role of old King Marke. (The music here is a direct quotation from Tristan and Isolde).

Change of scene: The feast of St. John in a meadow near the Pegnitz. A tribute is paid Hans Sachs by the people who honour him by singing one of his own chorales. The contest begins. Improvising his own music, Beckmesser attempts to sing the verses of Walther's song, but he only evokes laughter. Walther then sings the prize song amid general enthusiasm. The mastersingers wish to make him a member of their guild and he is reluctant at first but eventually Sachs persuades him. To the acclamation of the populace Walther places the laurel wreath which he has won on the head of Sachs.

ern housewife more isolated in her home than her grandmother was? If so, is it her fault or that of the society she lives in? Panelists will include Dr. John Rich, Toronto psychiatrist, who will also be a panelist the following January 20, when the subject will be Middle-Age Spread, also known as "the seven-year itch."

There are many bad jokes about husbands and wives who drift apart in the middle years of their marriage, but there are few statistics to give the jokes sound basis. Facts and figures are hard to come by, except in extreme cases which end in divorce, yet marital discontent, as nearly everyone knows from the experiences of their friends, if not their own, is prevalent. It can cause deep unhappiness, but it can also be salutary, forcing couples to reappraise themselves and their way of life. In this program two sides of a story are offered, and a solution suggested, but it is pointed out that perhaps this is a problem which cannot be "solved" in the accepted sense of the term.

The Wedding Date is the subject of the January 27 program. Two people want to get married. The girl is 17, the boy 19. Not too young in many countries, including parts of Canada. But the husband probably will have to give up hope of entering university, and the wife has barely graduated from high school and has no special training.

In North America children are encouraged to mature rapidly in social graces and emotional attachments, but our complex society makes economic independence more and more difficult at an early age. Is there a practical solution?

Among the panelists will be Dr. Ben Schlesinger of the Social Science Department at the University of Toronto, who will also be a panelist the following week, February 3. The program on that occasion is titled Happy Birthday — an ironic title when the birthday is your 65th and you have to retire. If a man and his wife are in good health they may have years ahead of them still—but doing what? Living where? On what? When we add up the prerequisites, they are meagre indeed. In our affluent world, whose responsibility is it to ensure that older people live in comfort and dignity?

To add interest to the radio series, the open-line technique, which has become popular in local radio stations across the country, will be used. Listeners in selected cities will 'phone in their ideas and questions and they will be heard by the radio audience the following week. In addition to CBC network stations, including St. John's, Newfoundland, several CBC affiliates will be collaborating in the series: CFGP, Grande Prairie; CFPL, London; CFCH, North Bay; CJIC, Sault Ste. Marie; CHWK, Chilliwack; CKSO, Sudbury, and CFAC, Calgary.

On January 10, teenage marriages will be discussed by experts in Edmonton and Toronto, and the January 17 program will include reactions from listeners in Grande Prairie and London. Other topics and participating cities will be: January 24, The Changing Role of the Housewife, Ottawa and Winnipeg experts; January 31, reaction from North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie; February 7, Marital Difficulties in the Middle Years, experts in Vancouver and Toronto; February 14, reaction from Chilliwack and Sudbury; February 21, The Retarded Child, experts in St. John's and Winnipeg; February 28, reaction from Calgary and St. John's; March 7, Old Age, experts to be announced; March 14, reaction from cities to be announced.

stones, has been sidelined for the year with a back ailment. And as a result, Mel Perry has replaced him at lead rocks. Perry has curled with the Richardsons on previous occasions, in car 'spiels and other bonspiels. In addition to Perry, and skip Ernie, the other members of the rink are Arnold at third and Garnet Richardson at second.

Backing up Manitoba skip Norm Houch are third Jim Ursell, second Morley Handford and lead Ross Murdoch.

Saturday's television programming also includes CBC Championship Golf. This week's match is the first semi-final battle from the Pine Valley Club in Toronto, with Al Balding going against Gerald Proulx.

The usual five-pin bowling show from Toronto's O'Connor Bowl is also featured, and winding up a busy day in sports programming is the regular NHL hockey telecast from the Forum in Montreal. The New York Rangers are the visiting team.

IS TOURISM SPOILING PARADISE?

also threatened, as thousands of cocoanut trees were menaced by infestations of the destructive rhinoceros beetle.

Authorities saw the need for new industry to bolster the sagging economy, and they didn't have to look far for an answer—it was all around them. Tahiti was a ready-made tourist attraction, with its moderate climate and the natural beauty of the island and its people.

Although a number of ships called at Tahiti, the number of visitors they brought to the island was negligible. The first step to encourage tourist trade was to provide quick and easy access. Part of a lagoon was filled in with thousands of tons of rock, and on top of it was built, in 1960, one of the longest and finest airstrips in the world, capable of handling the biggest jets. Three airlines—French, New Zealand and America—now operate services to the island.

As business picked up, the other enterprises associated with tourism—hotels, boat tours, boat rentals, restaurants, taxicabs—increased in number and size, providing hundreds of new jobs for Tahitians.

But with the coming of the tourist, the older order is passing away, to be replaced by commercialism.

The Islanders used to indulge in the simple native dances on special occasions, similar to the hula dancing of the Hawaiians. Today, groups of dancers travel about the island performing for tourists, and the dancers talk about "working out new routines."

In the capital city of the island, Papeete, food prices have risen as much as 500 per cent since the tourist industry began. Visits to Tahiti by British and American film crews have caused most natives to demand money whenever they see a movie camera pointed at them.

There is, of course, a diversity of opinion about the merits of Tahiti's new industry and its effect on the way of life. Some claim that "paradise never had it so good," while others maintain that tourism is spoiling the country, bringing revolution instead of evolution. One spokesman, Martial Iorrs, a scholar and respected member of the Polynesian community, says that his people are now trying to imitate the white man. "They are not adult enough to do this," he states. "It takes centuries for a people to grow up. Tourism is making us a race of menials."

Whatever the opinions expressed about the future, there is no doubt that tourism has "arrived" in Tahiti. However, one aspect of that industry has not yet been adopted: tipping is forbidden on the island—the practice is not in keeping with traditional Polynesian hospitality.

George Allen and Unwin Limited, and distributed in Canada by Thomas Nelson and Sons (Canada) Ltd. A 13-week dramatized serialization of the book, prepared by Len Peterson, well-known Canadian playwright of Norwegian extraction, will begin on CBC Radio on Saturday evening, Jan. 5.

Heyerdahl's expedition was the first to do any serious digging on the island, and it paid off, in large part because Heyerdahl was able to win the confidence of the Islanders, who were inclined to view any outsider as an enemy, a fool, or both. Because of his shrewdness and well-developed deductive powers, they began to attribute special powers to him. They believed he had an invisible guardian angel, an Aku-Aku who brought him good luck. They initiated him into some of their best-guarded traditions. The fact that he paid liberally in goods they needed badly was an added help. From their hiding places they produced for his inspection many strangely-carved stones in the shapes of animals, part real, part imaginary, skulls, and other grisly objects. They took him to their secret underground caves, through which he sometimes had to crawl on his stomach—perilous journeys which nearly cost him his life. They told him how their ancestors, without any tools but sticks and stones, had been able to hew, transport and erect the giant statues, and they proved it by doing it themselves.

The statues all have long ears and red stone top-knots, and history records that the natives Cook and La Perouse found on the island had flaps to their ears like Balaclava helmets. Island legends relate that long-eared folk arrived after 60 days' sail from the east, and tell of their battles and final defeat by a short-eared race from the west (Melanesia), who rebelled against working for them. This was probably a century before the arrival of the first Europeans.

There is still a strain of fair-skinned red-headed people on the island today. Among the Incas of Peru was a tall, white-skinned, red-headed, bearded race who, led by Kon-Tiki, the famous sailor, had migrated from Titicaca to Cuzco and then had sailed away across the Pacific. Kon-Tiki and his men had artificially lengthened ears. So there is some evidence for the theory that the Easter Island statues were carved by these South Americans.

The Peruvian Indians fashioned ships from huge, hollow, fresh-water reeds grown especially for that purpose, and which were slow to waterlog. With six sails attached, they almost flew over the water, even with 250 men aboard. On Easter Island Heyerdahl discovered a stone carving of a boat like these, and then he found the same sort of reeds growing there. When he enquired if the Islanders could make a boat like the one in the carving, they did it at once.

Heyerdahl also discovered that even before the arrival of the "Long-Ears" on Easter Island, it was inhabited by a race of clever masons. His diggers found walls composed of enormous stone blocks cut with great precision and fitted together perfectly without mortar. They found the floor of a temple, 400 by 500 feet, showing the same exquisite craftsmanship in the pre-Inca manner. The same superlative stonemasonry can be seen on the South American mainland opposite Easter Island.

With these discoveries on the desolate, unfertile little South Sea spot of land, the Easter Islanders have been handed back some of their self-respect which had been destroyed by centuries of visits by greedy, ferocious or diseased invaders from the Americas. Heyerdahl has restored their confidence in the value and grandeur of their culture, and his description of how he won them over and uncovered treasures shrouded in secrecy for hundreds of years make a thrilling and heart-warming tale which CBC Radio will bring to life.

and the theatre generally in an informal conversation with Lister Sinclair, Canadian actor and playwright.

Gielgud's surname is of Lithuanian origin, not Scots, as many believe. In 1904 he had the good fortune to be born into a famous acting family. He is the grandson of Kate Terry and a grand-nephew of the famous Ellen Terry. When he was 16, having five years earlier distinguished himself in such dissimilar parts as Humpty Dumpty and Shylock, he decided not to try for a university degree but to go on the stage. His family wasn't pleased with the idea, so to placate them he said he'd give acting a whirl until he was 25, and if he hadn't made good by then he'd leave greasepaint forever and become an architect.

"I was a very vain 16-year-old," he recalls, at Lady Benson's School—where his similarity to an arthritic cat was remarked upon. But he discovered that he could cry well, move his hands gracefully, and learning lines was no trouble at all. While at the school he worked as an unpaid "super" in Old Vic

Shakespearean productions. On graduation he got his first engagement, "entirely through influence." But he must have proved himself, because he won a year's scholarship to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, where he studied with Claude Rains. Leaving there he was offered some minor roles, and recalling his performances, he says, "I am surprised that the audiences didn't throw things at me."

At that time he was trying to find his feet in Shakespearean productions. His first major role was Romeo to Gwen Frangon-Davies' Juliet. Then he began following Noel Coward in roles Coward had created in The Constant Nymph, The Vortex, etc. He was aware all the time that theatre managers thought of him, "chiefly as a 'type' of neurotic, rather hysterical young man." But in 1930 he managed to shake off this label in Old Vic productions of Shakespeare and Shaw. He enjoyed his first success when he created the role of Inigo Joffiant in The Good Companions, and he turned his hand to direction with favourable results, particularly with the Merchant of Venice at the Old Vic.

His appearance as Hamlet there in 1934 and in New York two years later was considered the greatest interpretation since Barrymore's a decade earlier. Gielgud is strongly against a Freudian interpretation of Hamlet and other Shakespeare plays. "Of course he (Hamlet) wasn't in love with his mother," he insists. He goes on to say that, "I think the make-believe Macbeth I did when I was in my twenties was better understood by audiences than the one I did when I was 40. In that one I was considering the technical means too carefully."

He abhors mere technical perfection. But in climbing to great emotional heights on stage and shaking his audiences to tears, he always keeps in perfect command of the rhythms of beautiful movement and beautiful speech.

Sir John believes that Shakespeare has been overdone, that too much of him is a dangerous thing. "It becomes a burden to yourself, and it isn't so interesting for your audience. I don't want to be classed as a Shakespearean actor, because I'm getting so old that, if I do, I shall be in a museum, stuffed, before long."

Sir John also has a special talent for plays of high comedy, and has distinguished himself, as actor and director, in both the classical repertoire and in modern works. This month he will be appearing in Toronto as actor-director in Sheridan's The School for Scandal, a production being described as one of the greatest theatrical events in history.

In the theatre, he wears the robes of kings and generals and aristocrats with majesty, and even off-stage has been accused of being a bit aloof. But it is shyness that prevents him from revelling in autographing at the stage door. This sort of thing is a genuine ordeal for him, he says.

"I can't help holding with Marie Tempest. She once said to me: 'Actors should be like dolls—they should be put in tissue paper and a cardboard box after a performance and not brought out again until the following night.'"

Versatile as he is, and much as he loves trying things new, Shakespeare, whom he has interpreted for over half a century, occupies a special place in his affections, and enjoys some of the most subtle shadings of his talent, as visitors to the Stratford (Ontario) Festival on September 20, 1958, were well aware. On that occasion Gielgud was launching a North American tour, his first in over 10 years, with his one-man show, The Ages of Man, an anthology of readings from Shakespeare's plays and sonnets, including excerpts from the many roles Gielgud has made famous. He travelled 18,000 miles in 13 weeks, giving 75 performances of the show in 55 cities, all alone and in a dinner jacket, a feat which probably no other Shakespearean actor in history has ever accomplished.

"Most of the credit," says Gielgud, "must go to William Shakespeare. His words are so wonderful that if you serve them properly, they will carry you."

RECIPES FEATURED ON
"LADIES FIRST" EACH THURSDAY

Cookie Recipes

CINNAMON STARS

4 cups shelled, unblanched almonds (1 lb.) chopped fine
2½ cups sugar
3 tbsp. cinnamon
3 egg whites

Beat egg whites until they hold a stiff peak. Mix almonds, sugar and cinnamon in mixing bowl, then add egg whites and mix thoroughly until mixture sticks well together. Sprinkle sugar on board and roll out dough to ¼-inch thickness. Cut into star shapes. Place on sugared cookie sheet and let dry overnight. Bake at 275 degrees for 20 minutes.

Glaze: 1½ cups icing sugar
4½ tbsp. hot water

Mix until smooth. Brush over cookies, return to oven for two to four minutes.

CHERRY PEAKS

½ cup butter
1 cup flour
⅓ cup brown sugar
½ tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. vanilla
Small jar maraschino cherries

Cream butter, cream in sugar, sift flour and baking powder, add to creamed mixture and add vanilla. Make balls of dough about size of walnut. Put into palm of hand, flatten

The Twentieth Century Returns To CBC-TV Network on January 6

AFTER BEING absent for more than a year, The Twentieth Century will return to the CBC-TV network Sunday afternoon, Jan. 6.

The series, which originates with CBS-TV network, is now in its sixth season. Walter Cronkite will again be host-narrator for the series which features documentaries of historic events and items of current interest.

Zero Hour In Greece is the title of the program to be carried Jan. 6. The Twentieth Century will trace the civil war from Greece's war with Italy, through the German occupation, the Greek resistance, the British liberation and finally the defeat of communist elements in their bid for control of this key Mediterranean land.

Eyewitnesses include George Androulidakas, a newspaper man who lived in Athens during the German occupation, and General Kossindas, a member of the Greek resistance organization EDES. Script for the program is by Frank Gervasi, who, as a foreign correspondent covering the Middle East slightly, make indentation in centre with finger, place cherry in hole and bring dough up around cherry until completely covered. Place on cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Ice with pink glaze tinted with cherry juice, top with tiny pieces of cherry.

ANISE COOKIES

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1½-2 cups flour
1 tsp. anise seed
½ tsp. baking powder

Beat eggs until light, add sugar and keep beating until sugar is melted. Add flour that has been sifted with baking powder and anise seed. Beat 5 minutes and drop by teaspoon on well-greased pans one inch apart. Let stand overnight at room temperature. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees until slightly brown.

during the war, was witness to many of the events that are portrayed in the film.

In subsequent weeks, The Twentieth Century plans the following programs: a visit to Edwards Air Force Base in the California desert where new and experimental weapons and planes are tested; Air Drop At Arnhem—the story of the allies' disastrous attempt during the Second World War to bridge the Rhine and enter Germany from the North.

Italy's Booming North—a study of the current industrial boom that is changing the face of northern Italy; Finland's Tug of War—a visit to the Communist Youth Festival held in Finland last summer; Beachhead at Anzio—filmed recreation of the allied landing in Italy during the Second World War.

We Fed Our Enemies—recalling the relief from starvation of Europe and Asia after the last two wars and the famine in Russia in the twenties; Battle for Singapore—story of the successful Japanese attack from behind on Singapore during the Second World War.

Walter Cronkite at the scene of one of his recent reports on The Twentieth Century, the Saturn rocket launching area of Cape Canaveral, Florida.
